Sponsorship

1. Brand Visibility & Thought Leadership	Your company gets exposure to a targeted audience of policymakers, industry leaders, investors, and professionals. Speaking opportunities, panel discussions, or branding on event materials position you as an industry leader.
2. Networking & Business Development	Access to decision-makers from utilities, government, and industry. Build partnerships, find new clients, and strengthen existing relationships.
3. Market Positioning & Competitive Advantage	Shows commitment to renewable energy, sustainability, and climate action. Stand out among competitors by aligning with one of Ireland's leading renewable energy organizations.
4. Policy Influence & Industry Insights	Engage with policymakers and regulators who shape the future of wind energy in Ireland. Gain insights into market trends, regulatory changes, and upcoming opportunities.
5. Media Exposure & PR Opportunities	WEI events often attract media attention, offering press coverage and social media exposure. Being associated with a major industry event boosts credibility and brand reputation.
6. Supporting Renewable Energy Growth	Demonstrates corporate social responsibility by actively supporting Ireland's transition to clean energy. Helps foster innovation and investment in the wind energy sector.

Ireland's Largest Offshore Wind Conference

Ireland's offshore wind ambitions are alive and kicking. Delivering up to 20 GW by 2040 demands a clear shift from ambition to execution.

The publication of the Wind Energy Ireland Offshore Wind Action Plan in 2025 set out practical steps to remove barriers and strengthen investor confidence, while the establishment of the Taoiseach's Offshore Wind Energy Clearing House signals a whole-of-government commitment to removing these barriers and accelerate delivery.

Phase One projects are progressing through the planning system, with key upcoming planning decisions expected to provide critical clarity for the first wave of developments. Work is advancing on a National DMAP to provide a coordinated, long-term spatial framework for offshore wind, and attention is firmly fixed on the next steps for the Li Ban site in the South Coast DMAP.

Infrastructure will be decisive. Grid delivery timelines, port readiness, supply chain capacity and the pace of electricity demand growth — driven by electrification, industry and large energy users — will determine how quickly offshore projects can connect and scale.

The more than 500 senior decision-makers attending Wind Energy Ireland's Offshore Wind & Infrastructure Conference are the leaders shaping how Ireland plans, builds, connects and commercialises offshore wind projects. Be part of the conversation on May 26-27th 2026 if you want the opportunity to help shape Ireland's offshore wind future and turn ambition into delivery.
